

Filed 1/14/16 by Clerk of Supreme Court
IN THE SUPREME COURT
STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA

2016 ND 17

Deborah J. Palmer, surviving spouse of Gary J. Palmer, deceased,

Plaintiff and Appellant

v.

999 Quebec, Inc. (f/k/a International Boiler Works Company), a Delaware corporation;
A.H. Bennett Company, a Minnesota corporation;
A.L. Crump and Company, Inc., an Illinois corporation;
A.O. Smith Corporation, a Delaware corporation;
A.W. Chesterton Company, a Massachusetts corporation;
A.W. Kuettel & Sons, Inc., a Minnesota corporation;
Advocate Asbestos Mines, Ltd., a Canadian Corporation, Airco, Inc., a Delaware corporation; American Biltrite, Inc., American Standard, Inc., a Delaware corporation; Anchor Packing Company, a Delaware corporation; Apollo Piping & Supply, an Illinois corporation; Asbestos Corporation, Ltd., a Canadian corporation; Atlas Turner, Inc., a Canadian corporation; Australian Blue Asbestos, Pty., an Australian corporation; Bayer Cropscience, Inc., (successor to Rhone-Poulence, Inc., f/k/a Amchem Products, Inc., f/k/a Benjamin Foster Company, a New York Corporation; Beazer East, Inc., f/k/a Koppers Industries, Inc.; Beazer East, individually and as successor in the interest to THEIM and as successor in interest to Universal Refractories; Bell & Gossett a foreign corporation; Bell Asbestos Mines, Ltd., a Canadian corporation; Bondex International, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Bondex Company, an Ohio corporation; Border States Industries, Inc., a North Dakota corporation; Bryan Steam Corporation, an Indiana corporation; Building Sprinkler's Company, Inc., a North Dakota corporation; Burnham Corporation, a Pennsylvania corporation; CBS Corporation (f/k/a Westinghouse Electric Corporation), a Pennsylvania corporation; Calaveras Asbestos Mines, individually and as a successor-in-interest to California Asbestos Company, a California corporation; California Asbestos Company, a California corporation; Carborundum Abrasives, Inc., a Delaware corporation; Carlisle Corporation, a Delaware corporation; Carol Cable Corporation, a division of AVNET, Inc.,

a foreign corporation; CertainTeed Corporation,
 a Maryland corporation; Chevron U.S.A., Inc., a Pennsylvania corporation; Chicago Wilcox Manufacturing Company, an Illinois corporation; Chromalox (a division of Emerson Electric Co.), a Missouri corporation; Cleaver Brooks, Division of Aqua-Chem, Inc.,
 a Delaware corporation; Columbia Bailer Company, a Pennsylvania corporation; Crane Company, a Delaware corporation; Crane Johnson Company, a North Dakota corporation; Crane Packing Company, a foreign corporation; Crown Cork & Seal Company, Inc., a Pennsylvania corporation (individually and as successor-in-interest) to Mundet Cork Corporation; CSR, Ltd. (a/k/a Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Ltd.), an Australian corporation, individually and as an alter-ego of Australian Blue Asbestos, Pty.; Dakota Welding Supply, a North Dakota corporation; Dana Corporation, a Virginia corporation; Deltak, L.L.C., a Unit of Jason, Inc., a Minnesota corporation; Detroit Stoker,
 a Michigan corporation; Domco Products Texas,
 L.P., f/k/a Azrock Industries, Inc., a Delaware corporation; Dossert Corp., a New York corporation; Draxton Sales,
 a Minnesota corporation; Durabla Manufacturing Company, a Pennsylvania corporation; E.J. Lavino and Company, Inc., a Delaware corporation; Eaton Corporation (individually and as successor-in-interest to Samuel Moore & Company; an Ohio corporation; Egbert Corporation, individually and as success-in-interest to S.K. Wellman Corporation, an Ohio corporation; Electric Supply Corp., an Illinois corporation; Elliott Turbomachinery Company, Inc.; Emerson Electric Co., a Missouri corporation; Ericsson, Inc., (f/k/a Cable Corp.)
 a Delaware corporation (as successor-in-interest to Anaconda Wire & Cable Company); Excelsior, Inc., an Illinois corporation; Essex Group, Inc., Michigan corporation (individually and as successor-in-interest to Essex International, Inc.; F.R.P. Products, Ltd., a foreign corporation;
 F & C Supply, Inc., a North Dakota corporation;
 Fargo-Moorhead Insulation Company,
 a North Dakota corporation; Firebrick Supply Co.,
 a Minnesota corporation; Fisher Controls International, LLC,
 f/k/a Fisher Govenor Co., an Iowa corporation;
 Foseco, Inc., a Delaware corporation;
 Foster Products Corporation, a Minnesota corporation
 (as successor-in-interest to Foster Products Division of H.B. Fuller Company and to the Benjamin Foster Division of AmChem Products, Inc.); Foster Wheeler Corporation,
 a New York corporation; Frommelt Safety Products,
 a Wisconsin corporation; Fuel Economy Engineering Co.,
 a Minnesota corporation; Gardner Denver Machinery, Inc., (individually and as successor-in-interest to Joy Technologies, Inc.

f/k/a Joy Manufacturing Company) a Delaware corporation;
 General Electric Company, a foreign business corporation organized under the laws of New York;
 General Engineering Development Corporation,
 f/k/a Fuel Economy Engineering Company, a South Dakota corporation; General Refractories Company; George T. Walker & Co., Inc., a foreign corporation;
 Georgia-Pacific Corp., a Georgia corporation; Goodrich Corporation, f/k/a B.F. Goodrich Company, a New York corporation; Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, an Ohio corporation; Goulds Pumps; Graybar Electric,
 a New York corporation; Greene, Tweed & Co., a Pennsylvania corporation; Grinnell Corporation,
 a Minnesota corporation; H.B. Fuller, Co.,
 a Minnesota corporation; H.E. Everson Company, a North Dakota corporation; H.H. Robertson Company, a Pennsylvania corporation; Hedman Mines, Ltd.,
 a Canadian corporation; Hennig Packing & Gasket Corporation, an Illinois corporation; Henry Vogt Machine Company, a Kentucky corporation; Hercules Chemical Company, Inc.,
 a New Jersey corporation; Hickory Insulation Co,
 a foreign corporation; Hobart Brothers Co., an Ohio corporation;
 Honeywell, Inc., a Delaware corporation;
 Houston Specialty Wire & Cable Co., a Delaware corporation;
 IMO Industries, Inc.; Industrial Contractors, Inc.,
 a North Dakota corporation; Industrial Holdings Corporation,
 f/k/a The Carborundum Company, a Delaware corporation;
 Ingersoll-Rand Company, a New Jersey corporation;
 Illinois Insulation Contracting Company, Inc., (f/k/a Illinois Roofing & Insulation Company), an Illinois corporation; Inductotherm Industries, Inc.,
 a New Jersey corporation; Insulation Services, Inc., a Louisiana corporation; International Vermiculite Co., an Illinois corporation; ITT Corporation; J.H.
 France Refractories Company, a Pennsylvania corporation;
 The Jamar Company, a Minnesota corporation (individually) and as successor-in-interest and liability to the Walker-Jamar Company, a former Minnesota corporation); Jaquays Mining Company, an Arizona corporation; Jerguson Gage & Valve, a foreign corporation; John Crane, Inc., a Delaware corporation (successor-in-interest to John Crane-Houdaille, Inc. and Crane Packing Company); Johnston Boiler Co., a Michigan corporation;
 J.M. Asbestos Sales, Inc.; J-M Manufacturing Company, Inc.;
 Kaiser Gypsum Company, a Washington corporation;
 Kelly-Moore Paint Company, a California corporation; Kelsey-Hayes Group (a division of Varity Corporation),
 a Delaware corporation; Kewanee Boiler Corporation (n/k/a OakFabCo, Inc.), an Illinois corporation; Lac d' Amiante du Quebec, Ltee. (f/k/a/Lake Asbestos of Quebec),

a Canadian corporation; Lamons Metal Gasket Company, a Delaware corp.; Lincoln Electric Co., an Ohio corporation;
 Lipe-Rollway Corporation, a New York corporation; Lochinvar, a Tennessee corporation; Mandan Electric Supply,
 a foreign corporation; Marmon Corporation,
 a Delaware corporation; McMaster Carr Supply Company,
 an Illinois corporation; McNeil Refractories, Inc., a Pennsylvania corporation; Mellema Company, a Minnesota corporation; Metate Asbestos Mines,
 an Arizona corporation; Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, a foreign corporation; Mine Safety Appliance Company, a Pennsylvania corporation; Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, a Delaware corporation;
 Natkin Group, Inc., as successor to Fuel Economy
 Engineering Company, a Delaware corporation;
 Northern Plumbing & Heating, Inc., a North Dakota corporation;
 Northern Plumbing Supply, Inc., a North Dakota corporation; OakFabCo, Inc. f/k/a Kewanee Boiler Corporation an Illinois corporation; The Okonite Company, Inc., a New Jersey corporation; Owens-Illinois, Inc., an Ohio corporation; Parker Boiler Co.,
 a California corporation; Paul A. Douden,
 a Colorado corporation; Paul W. Abbott Company, Inc., a foreign corporation; Pfizer, Inc., a Delaware corporation;
 Phelps Dodge Industries, a New York corporation;
 Pipe, Valve & Fittings, Co., a Colorado corporation; Power Process Equipment, Inc., a Minnesota corporation;
 Praxair Distribution, Inc., a foreign corporation;
 Quin-T Corporation, a Delaware corporation;
 Rapid-American Corporation, a Delaware corporation;
 Research Cottrell, Inc., a New Jersey corporation;
 Rhone-Poulenc, Inc., a New York corporation
 (as successor-in-interest to Benjamin Foster, a division of AmChem Products Company); Riley Power, Inc., f/k/a Riley Stoker Corporation, a Massachusetts corporation; Robinson Insulation,
 a Montana corporation; Rockbestos-Surprenant Cable Corp.
 (f/k/a The Rockbestos Company) a Delaware corporation
 (a wholly owned subsidiary Marmon Corporation);
 Rockwell International Corporation, a Nevada corporation; Rome Cable Corp., a Delaware corporation, (a subsidiary of Rome Group, Inc.); Roughrider Supply, a foreign corporation; RPM, Inc., an Ohio corporation;
 Ryall Electric Supply, Inc., a Colorado corporation;
 S.O.S. Products Company, Inc., a New York corporation; Saint-Gobain Abrasives, Inc. f/k/a Norton Company individually and as successor by merger with Carborundum Abrasives Company, a Massachusetts corporation; SEPCO Corporation, an Alabama corporation; Singer Safety Company,
 an Illinois corporation; Smith-Sharpe Company, a Minnesota corporation; Sprinkman Sons Corporation,

an Illinois corporation; Sternmerich Supply Co.,
a Missouri corporation; Superior Boiler Works, Inc., a Kansas corporation; Sussman Electric Boilers, a New York corporation; Square D, a brand of Schneider Electric; 3M; Thermo Electric Co.,
a New Jersey corporation; The Trane Co., a New York corporation, (a division of American Standard, Inc.);
U.S. Filter Co., a foreign corporation; Union Boiler Co.,
a Delaware corporation; Union Carbide Corporation,
a Delaware corporation; Uniroyal, Inc.,
a New Jersey corporation; United Conveyor Corporation, an Illinois corporation; Victor H. Leeby Company, a North Dakota corporation; Walker Jamar Company, A Minnesota corporation; Warren Pumps, LLC f/k/a Warren Pumps, Inc.; Weil McLain Company, a Delaware corporation; Western Steel & Plumbing, Inc., a North Dakota corporation; Whittier Filtration, Inc. f/k/a U.S. Filter/Whitter, Inc., a subsidiary of Water Applications & Systems Corporation, a Delaware corporation; Yarway Corporation; Zurn Industries, Inc.,
a Pennsylvania corporation,

Defendants

A.W. Kuettel & Sons, Inc., a Minnesota corporation,

Appellee

No. 20150031

Appeal from the District Court of Grand Forks County, Northeast Central Judicial District, the Honorable Debbie Gordon Kleven, Judge.

AFFIRMED.

Opinion of the Court by Crothers, Justice.

David C. Thompson, P.O. Box 5235, Grand Forks, N.D. 58206-5235, for plaintiff and appellant.

Thomas M. Stieber (argued), Jason T. Mohr (appeared), Kyle B. Mansfield (on brief), and Joanna M. Salmen (on brief), 250 Marquette Avenue, Suite 1200, Minneapolis, MN 55401, for appellee.

Palmer v. 999 Quebec, Inc.

No. 20150031

Crothers, Justice.

[¶1] Deborah J. Palmer, surviving spouse of Gary J. Palmer, appeals from a summary judgment dismissing Palmer’s negligence claim against A.W. Kuettel & Sons, Inc. We affirm, concluding Palmer has failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact to preclude summary judgment.

I

[¶2] Gary Palmer was born in 1955 and grew up in Duluth, Minnesota. He was diagnosed with mesothelioma, a form of cancer, in 2011, and died in March 2015. Kuettel supplied and installed asbestos-containing insulation products while performing industrial and commercial insulation contracting work. Palmer’s deceased father worked for Kuettel from 1961 through 1965 and 1974 through 1979. Most of Kuettel’s jobs were in Minnesota, however, in the 1960s, Kuettel supplied and installed insulation products at the Grand Forks Air Force Base.

[¶3] In 2013 Palmer sued numerous defendants, including Kuettel, alleging Kuettel’s negligence caused his mesothelioma. Palmer alleged he contracted mesothelioma from childhood exposure to asbestos fibers through contact with his father’s dusty work clothes. In his deposition he stated that while in elementary school he came in contact with his father’s work clothes when he would hug his father after he arrived home from work. He also stated he played in the vicinity of the laundry area where his mother washed his father’s work clothes. Palmer alleged Kuettel should have warned him or his father of the dangerous nature of asbestos and asbestos-containing products.

[¶4] Kuettel moved for summary judgment, arguing it did not owe a duty to warn Palmer about asbestos because no special relationship existed between them. Kuettel also argued it was not liable for any of Palmer’s injuries because it did not manufacture any of the asbestos-containing products it supplied and installed. The district court granted Kuettel’s motion on both grounds and dismissed Palmer’s action against Kuettel.

II

[¶5] Summary judgment is a procedural device for the prompt resolution of a controversy on the merits without a trial if there are no disputed issues of material fact or inferences to be drawn from the undisputed facts, or if resolving disputed facts would not alter the results. Horob v. Farm Credit Services of N.D., 2010 ND 6, ¶ 11, 777 N.W.2d 611.

[¶6] Our standard of review for summary judgment is well-established:

“The party moving for summary judgment has the burden of establishing that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. In deciding whether the district court appropriately granted summary judgment, this Court views the evidence in the light most favorable to the party opposing the motion, and the opposing party will be given the benefit of all favorable inferences that can reasonably be drawn from the record. On appeal, we decide ‘whether the information available to the district court precluded the existence of a genuine issue of material fact and entitled the moving party to judgment as a matter of law.’”

Id. at ¶ 12 (quoting Schleuter v. Northern Plains Ins. Co., Inc., 2009 ND 171, ¶ 6, 772 N.W.2d 879). Whether a district court properly granted summary judgment is a question of law this Court reviews de novo on the entire record. Horob, at ¶ 12.

[¶7] We have stated:

“Although the party seeking summary judgment has the burden of showing that there is no genuine issue of material fact, the party resisting the motion may not simply rely upon the pleadings. Nor may the opposing party rely upon unsupported, conclusory allegations. The resisting party must present competent admissible evidence by affidavit or other comparable means which raises an issue of material fact and must, if appropriate, draw the court’s attention to relevant evidence in the record by setting out the page and line in depositions or other comparable documents containing testimony or evidence raising an issue of material fact.

“In summary judgment proceedings, neither the trial court nor the appellate court has any obligation, duty, or responsibility to search the record for evidence opposing the motion for summary judgment. The opposing party must also explain the connection between the factual assertions and the legal theories in the case, and cannot leave to the court the chore of divining what facts are relevant or why facts are relevant, let alone material, to the claim for relief.”

Iglehart v. Iglehart, 2003 ND 154, ¶ 10, 670 N.W.2d 343 (quoting Anderson v. Meyer Broad. Co., 2001 ND 125, ¶ 14, 630 N.W.2d 46).

[¶8] Palmer argues the district court erred in granting Kuettel summary judgment on his negligence claim. Specifically, he argues the court erred in concluding Kuettel did not owe a duty of care to Palmer. Palmer argues the court should have focused on foreseeability of injury in its analysis of whether Kuettel owed a duty to Palmer.

[¶9] Negligence actions involve issues of fact and generally are inappropriate for summary judgment. Klingle v. Bahl, 2007 ND 13, ¶ 5, 727 N.W.2d 256. To succeed in his negligence action Palmer must prove Kuettel owed him a duty of care, Kuettel breached that duty and Palmer suffered an injury that was proximately caused by Kuettel's negligence. Id.

[¶10] Generally, the existence of a duty is a preliminary question of law for the court. Messer v. B & B Hot Oil Serv., Inc., 2015 ND 202, ¶ 7, 868 N.W.2d 373. "When a duty does not exist, there is no negligence." Azure v. Belcourt Pub. Sch. Dist., 2004 ND 128, ¶ 9, 681 N.W.2d 816. "If determining the existence of a duty depends on resolving factual issues, the facts must be resolved by the trier of fact. However, issues of fact may become issues of law for the court if reasonable persons could reach only one conclusion from the facts." Saltsman v. Sharp, 2011 ND 172, ¶ 11, 803 N.W.2d 553 (quoting Botner v. Bismarck Parks & Recreation Dist., 2010 ND 95, ¶ 10, 782 N.W.2d 662).

[¶11] Whether a duty of care is owed in a secondary or "take-home" asbestos exposure case is a matter of first impression for this Court. As discussed below, in deciding whether a duty was owed to a plaintiff in a secondary asbestos exposure case, courts have focused on either the foreseeability of the injury or the nature of the relationship between the parties. See, e.g., In re Certified Question from Fourteenth Dist. Court of Appeals of Texas, 740 N.W.2d 206 (Mich. 2007).

[¶12] In support of his argument Palmer cites to numerous cases holding a duty was owed to the plaintiff on the basis of the foreseeability of the plaintiff's injury. See e.g., Bobo v. Tennessee Valley Auth., 2015 WL 5693609 (N.D. Ala.); Anderson v. A.J. Friedman Supply Co., Inc., 3 A.3d 545 (N.J. Super. App. Div. 2010); Arnold v. Saberhagen Holdings, Inc., 240 P.3d 162 (Wash. App. 2010); Satterfield v. Breeding Insulation Co., 266 S.W.3d 347 (Tenn. 2008); Olivo v. Owens-Illinois, Inc., 895 A.2d 1143 (N.J. 2006).

[¶13] In focusing on foreseeability in the duty analysis, the cases cited by Palmer discussed evidence showing the defendants knew or were aware of the risks of asbestos but failed to take any action or took little action to notify others regarding the harmful effects of asbestos. Bobo, 2015 WL 5693609 at *18; Anderson, 3 A.3d at 555-56; Arnold, 240 P.3d at 172-73; Satterfield, 266 S.W.3d at 352-53, 367; Olivo, 895 A.2d at 1149. Under those authorities, foreseeability of a plaintiff's injury depends upon the employer's knowledge of the risk that employees could carry asbestos home and cause injury to others.

[¶14] Here, the district court concluded Kuettel did not owe Palmer a duty because no special relationship existed between Kuettel and Palmer. Similarly, courts in New York, Georgia, Michigan and Delaware have focused on the lack of a relationship between the parties in holding employers and premises owners do not owe a duty to secondary asbestos plaintiffs. See Riedel v. ICI Americas Inc., 968 A.2d 17, 26-27 (Del. 2009); In re Certified Question from Fourteenth Dist. Court of Appeals of Texas, 740 N.W.2d at 222; In re New York City Asbestos Litig., 840 N.E.2d 115, 122 (N.Y. 2005); CSX Transp., Inc. v. Williams, 608 S.E.2d 208, 210 (Ga. 2005).

[¶15] This Court's negligence cases have focused on both foreseeability of injury and the relationship of the parties in deciding whether a duty exists. Foreseeability of the plaintiff's injury in the context of whether a defendant owed a duty of care was discussed in Barsness v. General Diesel & Equip., Co., 383 N.W.2d 840, 843 (N.D. 1986); Layman v. Braunschweigische Maschinenbauanstalt, Inc., 343 N.W.2d 334, 341 (N.D. 1983); Schleicher v. Western State Bank, 314 N.W.2d 293, 298 (N.D. 1982); and Kirton v. Williams Elec. Coop., Inc., 265 N.W.2d 702, 705 (N.D. 1978). In those cases we held that "foreseeability of the plaintiff's injury is a question of fact for the jury, unless the facts are such that reasonable minds could not differ." Barsness, at 843 (citing Layman, at 341; Kirton, at 705).

[¶16] In a more recent case discussing a defendant's duty we stated "[d]uty is essentially a question of whether the relationship between the actor and the injured person gives rise to any legal obligation on the actor's part for the benefit of the injured person." Azure v. Belcourt Pub. Sch. Dist., 2004 ND 128, ¶ 10, 681 N.W.2d 816 (quoting 57A Am. Jur. 2d. Negligence § 81 (1989 & Supp. 2002)).

[¶17] Here, regardless of whether the focus is on foreseeability of injury, relationship of the parties or a combination of both, Palmer has not raised any genuine issues of material fact that would preclude summary judgment. The evidence submitted by Palmer fails to establish a special relationship between Kuettel and Palmer or Kuettel's knowledge of the dangers of asbestos while Palmer's father was employed by Kuettel.

[¶18] To show Kuettel's knowledge regarding asbestos Palmer submitted a now-repealed 1943 Minnesota worker's compensation statute, Kuettel's answers to interrogatories from a 1996 Burleigh County district court case, and a Minnesota statute passed in 1973 that prohibited the use of powdered asbestos. See Minn. Stat. § 325F.01. In its answers to interrogatories Kuettel stated it became aware of the possible hazards associated with asbestos exposure in the early 1970s. Kuettel also stated it believed asbestos was removed from all products it purchased and installed in the early 1970s. The Minnesota statute prohibiting the use of powdered asbestos became effective in 1973, and Palmer's father resumed his employment with Kuettel in 1974. The interrogatory answers and statute are relevant as to Kuettel's knowledge regarding asbestos but Palmer presented no evidence showing Kuettel continued to use asbestos products after his father resumed employment with Kuettel in 1974 when the use of asbestos was prohibited in Minnesota.

[¶19] Other evidence submitted by Palmer was his birth certificate listing his father's occupation as an "asbestos worker," excerpts from Palmer's deposition describing how his father always wore his dusty work clothes home and deposition excerpts from a co-worker of Palmer's father who stated he and Palmer's father worked together at the Grand Forks Air Force base in the 1960s and that asbestos is dusty. None of this evidence shows Kuettel had knowledge of the dangers of asbestos while Palmer's father was employed by Kuettel or that a special relationship existed between Kuettel and Palmer.

[¶20] Palmer also appears to rely on an expert who testified in a New Jersey asbestos case and claims the expert will testify at trial in this case. See Anderson, 3 A.3d at 553. The expert's testimony in Anderson was relevant to show Exxon Mobil Corporation's knowledge regarding the hazards of asbestos, but Palmer made no showing the expert will testify that Kuettel knew of the dangers of asbestos while Palmer's father was employed by Kuettel.

[¶21] This Court is not required to determine why facts may be relevant or material to a party's case. Iglehart, 2003 ND 154, ¶ 10, 670 N.W.2d 343. Whether Kuettel owed Palmer a duty of care is a question of law. Messer, 2015 ND 202, ¶ 7, 868 N.W.2d 373. A question of law may depend on facts that must be decided by a fact finder, but that is not the case here. Saltsman, 2011 ND 172, ¶ 11, 803 N.W.2d 553. We conclude Palmer has presented no evidence in opposition to the motion for summary judgment from which a reasonable person could conclude Kuettel owed a duty of care to Palmer.

IV

[¶22] Palmer argues the district court erred in granting Kuettel's motion for summary judgment under the liability of nonmanufacturer statute, N.D.C.C. § 28-01.3-04. Alternatively, Palmer argues Minnesota's nonmanufacturing seller statute should apply in this case. See Minn. Stat. § 544.41. Because we conclude Kuettel did not owe a duty of care to Palmer, it is not necessary to address these arguments. We affirm the summary judgment dismissing Palmer's negligence claim against Kuettel.

[¶23] Daniel J. Crothers
Stacy Joan Louser, D.J.
Lisa Fair McEvers
Dale V. Sandstrom
Gerald W. VandeWalle, C.J.

[¶24] The Honorable Stacy Joan Louser, D.J., sitting in place of Kapsner, J., disqualified.